A creation by Cirque La Compagnie

One car, 5.5 men... They don't have much in common, but there is at least one particularity that unites them: their father. The 5 brothers find themselves together on the road on their way back from their father's cremation. The latter is also present in the car: he travels in an urn... And it's an accident! Relax in front of this tragi-comic huis clos with these five exceptional circus artists, who offer a dynamic, joyful and extremely inventive show.

In this collection that honors contemporary circus in all its forms, artists from all disciplines express themselves through inventive, immersive and cinematic works with energy, poetry and humor. Juggling, acrobatics, acrobatics, Chronocircus captures the freedom that characterizes this new multidisciplinary scene in perpetual evolution.

JOSIANES OR THE ART OF RESISTANCE

Josianes or the Art of Resistance is a film that combines circus, dance, and vertical dance. Against a backdrop of offbeat humor, mixing acrobatics, wild choreography, and polyphonic singing, the four women of the JOSIANES company recount their incredible adventures and explore the notion of female resistance. Uninhibited, authentic, and engaging, funny but sprinkled with vulnerability, the show is an ode to joie de vivre, to multiple forms of femininity, and a beautiful tribute to our grandmothers!

FAILED VERTIGO

On a busy street in an anonymous megacity, a musician plays the bass saxophone. Amidst the rushing crowd, a tired woman carrying a heavy travel bag stops to listen to his music. She puts down her burden and finds herself mysteriously propelled into the air. Surprise mingles with panic as passersby, transfixed by this unexplained phenomenon, rush to catch her. Determined to prevent the woman from flying away, they mobilize all their strength to bring her back down to earth and anchor her firmly to the ground. A battle against the force of gravity ensues, where the extraordinary meets reality, creating a scene that is as captivating as it is moving.

The acrobatic bicycle collective La Bande à Tyrex takes over the Vichy Opera for a crazy and twirling creation!

Through this short film which mixes the acrobatic work of the Bande à Tyrex, music and cinema, the collective presents its unbridled and explosive universe. The ten circus artists on ten bicycles highlight the grandiose and precious architecture of the Vichy Opera House with tenderness.

LOCKDOWN
Watch the video

Austrian-born, multi-talented artist Michael Zandl began juggling at a very young age. Fascinated by physical abilities, he pursued his dream and developed a true passion for the circus. From natural sciences to circus arts, he studied at a prestigious school in Rotterdam. With an already rich career, Michael Zandl collaborates with Roberto Magro (La Central del Circ) and Ed Wubbe (Scapino-Ballet Rotterdam). Magic, humor and hats in this psycho-thriller that opens the new Chronocircus collection.

LOST PARADISE
Watch the video

Between fiction and reality, the artists' collective Cirque Pardi! takes up the codes of the traditional circus and offers us a whirlwind of acrobatic acts. Fixed trapeze, swinging trapeze, dance, acrobatic bicycle, tightrope walking, acrobatic lifts, clowning and juggling are all mixed together in this whimsical cabaret.

FLOWERS BLOOM IN THE SHADE

Watch the video

Through more or less dangerous acrobatic installations, the character puts himself in danger and reflects on the beauty and fragility of the world. Inspired by “Take Care of Yourself”, author and director Marc Oosterhoff places emotions at the heart of his work.

30.12.31

SPEED

Watch the video

With humour, Marta Torrents takes us into the schizophrenic daily life of a young mother. In the intimacy of the character who performs gestures at supersonic speed, the author and director denounces the mental burden that weighs on women.

ZUGZWANG

Watch the video

In this episode of Chronocircus, Le Galactik Ensemble highlights the discipline of situational acrobatics, that direct and concrete relationship between an uneven environment and man's ability to adjust to it. Through their creation, they demonstrate that faux pas and imbalance generate something unexpected but constructive, a happy chance.

29.06.31

Chiendent

Laughter, fear and fascination: the acrobats of the company La Volte serve us a cocktail of emotions in this episode of Chronocircus. Through the acrobatic materials developed by the duo, “Chiendent” questions the relationship with the other’s body and particularly male friendship, while trying to explain why the acrobat/showman fascinates us and scares us at the same time.

ECHO

After learning the visual and plastic arts, Inbal Ben Haim discovered the circus and devoted herself to the rich minimalism of the corde lisse. By mixing circus, dance, theatre, improvisation and plastic arts, she creates her own poetic of expression, which she exposes in this creation, where acrobatic body and delicate material, but also delicate body and resistant material, are dialogued. Born from her meeting with Alexis Merat, a paper artist, the project brings together the body and a material that is both fragile and resistant: paper.

Pianist Alexandre Tharaud and dancer Chun Wing Lam celebrate Bach's music in an old foundry where several of Rodin's masterpieces were created. There, amid a garden of ghostly sculptures or beside an abandoned swimming pool, the pianist and dancer from the Paris Opera give full expression to the emotional power of Bach's music. The echoes are all the more moving because it was in this timeless place that many of Auguste Rodin's bronze statues were created.

We all know Marlon Brando for his hit films or his two Oscars. But his relationship with French Polynesia, where the actor lived for nearly 30 years, remains largely unexplored. By living in Tahiti, Brando thought to quell his anxieties and his depravity...but Polynesia with its exquisite landscapes, its gentle way of life and its singular culture were, in reality, only a mirage, an illusion of the idealized peaceful existence that the star ultimately never managed to achieve.

What happens when a young, unknown actress becomes the first female action hero and an international movie star?

With her appearance in ALIEN in 1979, Sigourney Weaver made cinema history: for the first time a woman had played the lead role in an action movie. 45 years later, with blockbusters such as GHOSTBUSTERS and AVATAR under her belt, she remains an adored icon, with an incomparable career that has cemented the path of emancipation for female roles.

Music is everywhere: in bars, churches, shops, ritual ceremonies, in the headphones of our smartphones, in both public places and private places ... It adopts an infinite number of different forms, as varied as the forms of the living world. Everything around us happens as if music had proliferated over time, transforming itself through a series of mutations. How to explain this universality and diversity? Would it be possible to go back to a source?

American, William Christie is one of the great ambassadors of French culture and the French way of "feeling art", as he likes to say. His career as a harpsichordist, conductor, musicologist and teacher remains closely linked to France. It is at the origin of a remarkable musical adventure: his rediscovery of baroque music. This film seeks to give voice to one man's unique point of view and to lift the veil on the path of this enormous talent, who is as lucid and charming as he is inaccessible.
